Think Of The Future

A condition of prosperity prevails throughout Canada from coast to coast. It is not confined to any one section nor to any one industry or group of industries. There is, in fact, generally to the educational mind prosperity prevailing without a parallel in the past history of the Dominion. This is not to say that everybody or every industry is equally prosperous or indeed, that there are not those who do not enjoy prosperity. The contrary is true. But taking Canada as a whole, and in the major activities of its people, prosperity reigns today.

It is a condition of affairs that is realizing. Nobody would have it otherwise, and all desire that it should be long continued. But there are dangers to be avoided in times of more or less universal prosperity which do present themselves when times are hard and business depression afflicts business activity. It is evidenced. It is in an old and often proved statement that many people who can and have stood strong and true through the strain and stress of adversity, and who through adversity have been cracked and broken when favored with prosperity and success.

Canada in prosperous today, and it should take full advantage of its present favorable position. The people are optimistic and should continue to be. They should continue to show vision, courage, and engage in constructive activities. They should be unwavering of their heritage and the future possibilities of their Dominion. If they acted otherwise, they would lose the spirit which has been the cause of the glowing present and the bright future to come.

Just as night follows day, winter follows summer, young grows into old age, and death is the ultimate end of birth, so it is inevitable that in course of time, depression, business depression, will follow prosperity. It is as sure as fate as it is the other. It is a wise man and a good man, therefore, which when times are good and development is the order of the day, to be thoughtful and to prepare for that future day when retrogression may become a necessity.

It is a condition of affairs that is realized too. If an individual or a community becomes accustomed to large future obligations in order to further speed up present development, they may find themselves in great financial straits to come.

All countries, all communities, most individuals, have passed through similar experiences. Western Canada has not been immune from them, and they are receding into the past. That is the period of adjustment following the collapse of a "boom" was much longer than the boom itself, and that in the final analysis the losses far out-weighed the gains.

At the present time all our Western cities, towns, villages and rural communities are placed in a position of comparative prosperity. In fact, the country is growing, and the almost universal demand for increased expenditures to provide this fact, that today it is possible and necessary to make money to carry out the program of development and to meet the initial interest charges. But a debt is created which will remain for years to come. When the present prosperity subsides, when money is hard to obtain, when depression and degree of unemployment replace present favorable conditions in business, will the loan be too heavy a burden?

It will be unless care is exercised by all civic and municipal authorities in seeing that the safety line in expansion is not passed, and that expenditures are made for permanent improvements which will be recovered in the years to come. Extravagance in loans is no more justified in times of prosperity than they are at other times. It is in those "other times" that the bills really have to be paid.

Development works are necessary and are justified in times of prosperity, when they would be suicidal, and when they are not more justified in times of prosperity than they are at other times. It is in those "other times" that the bills really have to be paid.

Writes Foreword To Final Volume Of Merchant Navy

The Prince of Wales has turned around, or at least has written a foreword to the third and final volume of the Merchant Navy by Sir Archibald S. Hurd. The foreword was written in his capacity as chairman of the Merchant Navy Relief Committee, which has been holding its last meeting, conferred upon him by the King last year.

Writing a tribute to the British mercantile marine, the Prince refers to the fact that the world's merchant marine in the world war has been providing the final test of its superiority in history.

The Lazy Age

Methodical Perfection Taking the Place of Manual Labor

One of our contemporary philosophers has remarked the other day that no generation was ever so devoted for its ends without resorting to heat without thinking and success without thinking."

It is a qualified comment on the social economy and mental tendencies of the present day, at the rate at which we are moving today toward the perfection of the "pneumatic wheelbarrow" and the principle of electrification it seems possible that by day after tomorrow we may be taking everything and nothing. No fuss, no exertion, no required manual process that really deserves the name of thinking. At the rate the device will probably be developed in the next few years, and we may not even have to push a button to have all our needs efficiently met. But a word or two at the right key will be enough to make the complicated marvel respond to the wish. And, of course, no greater delivery is attained in the delivery of nerve current than of the thing it moves. The nerve current is enough to do the work. The physical effort is sufficient, at least, will have arrived.

We have already observed the much waning popularity of heat without thinking. It has caused considerable alarm in the North Atlantic. The rate of the thing is so rapid that it is not to be thought of as a thing that will be developed in the next few years, but that it is already being developed. The thing is so rapid that it is not to be thought of as a thing that will be developed in the next few years, but that it is already being developed.
